EDITOR USE AFTER ACCEPTANCE. This is a layout template, not a published article. Replace bracketed fields with verified article data. Use actual editorial dates; 15 December 2026 is the scheduled issue date. Remove this note and template labels before publication.

Abstract

[Insert the final approved abstract of 150–250 words. State the research problem, objective, method, principal findings, and contribution. Ensure that the abstract agrees with the final article and the OJS metadata.]

Keywords: [keyword one]; [keyword two]; [keyword three]; [up to six keywords]

1 Introduction

[Insert the accepted introduction. Present the research problem, relevant scholarship, research question, and contribution. Preserve the author-approved wording during typesetting. Apply OSCOLA footnotes consistently throughout the article.]

[Example of a footnote placed after a sentence that requires source support.][1]

1 [Author], [Book Title] ([Publisher] [Year]) [pinpoint]. Replace this example with an actual source and italicise the book title.

2 Research Method

[Insert the accepted account of the research design, sources, analytical method, and limitations. Adapt this heading to the nature of the article. Retain verified methodological and ethical information from the accepted manuscript.]

3 Results and Discussion

3.1 First analytical theme

[Insert the first analytical section. Preserve citations, quotations, legal authorities, and pinpoint references. Use descriptive subsection headings and maintain a consistent hierarchy.]

3.2 Comparative or contextual analysis

[Insert the next analytical section. Add or remove subsections as needed. Keep tables and figures near their first discussion and verify captions, source credits, permissions, and in-text references.]

[Table and figure position, if applicable. Provide a numbered caption and source. Remove this placeholder if not needed.]

4 Conclusion

[Insert the approved conclusion. Ensure that the conclusions follow from the analysis and that no substantive change is introduced during production without author approval.]

Declarations

Funding: [state the source and grant number, or the absence of external funding, as applicable].
Competing interests: [disclose relevant interests, or state that there are none if accurate].
Author contributions: [describe each author's contribution].
Acknowledgements: [optional; include people only with their permission].

Ethics and data availability: [state ethics approval and participant consent where relevant; explain data access or restrictions. For doctrinal studies without human participants, indicate if ethics approval is not applicable].
Use of AI tools: [if used, identify the tool, its purpose, the work assisted, and how the authors verified the output. Make only accurate declarations].

Bibliography

[Insert the final bibliography in OSCOLA style. The entries below are formatting placeholders, not verified references; replace or delete every entry.]
